Purpose

We are living at turbulent times and within permanent transformation. Some communities achieve prosperity while others become desolate. Some businesses grow other go bankrupt. Societies fall apart and entire countries encounter economic collapse. While all this is goes on we keep on believing in control – wherever in public or private organizations, in politics or communities, in churches or at school. However, broader vision of things sends us an ultimate message: The Universe is self-organizing since the big bang. Chaos, confusion and conflict are integral parts of the constant creative process.

Transformation influence communities and institutions which are constantly looking for adequate position in the permanently changing world. This conference suggests a look on self organization as the effective way of ensuring a right place in the sun...
